2.3.1 Student-centric methods such as experiential learning, participative learning and problem-solving methodologies are used for enhancing learning experiences

Addressing the varied requirements of our students, we have integrated a spectrum of pedagogical strategies, including participative learning and problem-solving, with the goal of enriching the overall learning experience. The active integration of student-centered approaches, such as seminars, group discussions, and hands-on laboratory classes, stands as a fundamental element in our educational methodology. While upholding our dedication to conventional teaching methods like blackboard presentations, our instructors, particularly in the fields of mathematics and commerce problem-solving, emphasize the cultivation of numerical proficiency to fortify the skill sets of our students.
